

YOU ARE INVITED TO PARTICIPATE in the First North Texas Materials Symposium if you are a student at one of the universities in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and your research area is related to materials science. The University of Texas at Arlington Student Chapter of the American Society of Materials (ASM-UTA) will be co-hosting a one-day symposium on Sunday, April 10, 2005 with the North Texas Chapter of ASM-International.

Graduate and undergraduate students at University of Texas at Arlington (UTA), University of Texas Dallas (UTD), Southern Methodist University (SMU), Texas Christian University (TCU), & University of North Texas (UNT), are encouraged to present their research work and participate in this symposium.

The symposia will focus the following research areas Nanotechnology and Nanomaterials, Electronic and Polymeric, Biomaterials, Composites, Ceramics and Structural Materials

SYMPOSIUM HIGHLIGHTS

The purpose of this symposium is to create an open forum where such multidisciplinary materials research can be discussed and multi institutional research programs can be expanded.

Participants in the symposium can either use poster or Visual presentations. to present their research work.

At the end of the day, the best poster presentation and the runner up in each of the following categories will be awarded $100 and $50 respectively.

- Nanotechnology and Electronic Materials
- Polymeric Materials and Biomaterials
- Composites and Ceramics
- Other Materials Science Topics (Structural Materials, Mechanical/Physical Properties of Materials, etc.)
